

TArc TAYLOR ARCHITECTS

ARCHITECTURE
ENGINEERING
PROGRAMMING
PLANNING
SUSTAINABILITY

NEW FIRM NAME

Most of you will notice a new logo and firm name. As of January 1, TAYLOR • WHITNEY ARCHITECTS became TAYLOR ARCHITECTS. This change reflects the fact that long time partner John Whitney retired from the firm and the practice of Architecture in August 2010. Jerry Taylor will continue serving our many clients in the same manner as always. Nothing changes but the name.

COMMUNITY/SENIOR CENTERS

Community/Senior Centers have become a significant building type in today's built environment. While no two Community/Senior Center projects are alike, most feature similar characteristics and components developed and tested over time. Still, the fact remains that there is no exact formula for good senior center design. What ultimately gives a community or senior center its strength is bringing people together, something TAYLOR ARCHITECTS does with verve.

ON THE BOARDS

TArc recently completed design of the new Western Kentucky University International Programs Center. This new 13,000 SF facility will serve as a community center for the international students as well as housing offices for the University's international programs. These include programs for both international students attending WKU as well as local students studying abroad.

Many of these projects are funded through state or federal grant programs such as CDBG, USDA/RD, and ARC. TArc's extensive experience with these funding sources is a valuable asset in the successful completion of these projects.

Representative Community/Senior Projects:

- Russell County Senior Center
- Eubank Senior Center
- Owsley County Senior Center
- McCreary County Senior Center
- Clinton County Wellness Center
- Sandy Valley Respite Center

Contact TArc for more information on this project type.

CONTACT INFORMATION

836 E. Euclid Avenue, Suite 320
Lexington, Kentucky 40502
859.231-6383 j.taylor@twarc.com

Visit our web site at www.twarc.com